Camera di commercio e industria slovacca \(sopk.sk\)

Slovak Chamber of Commerce and Industry (SCCI) is a public private institution founded by law in 1992. It acts as an independent representative of Slovak business and economic activities, focused on supporting and protecting business activities and coordinating business interests of its members in Slovakia and abroad.

SCCI is the only business institution that has created regional structures covering the whole of Slovakia. The Headquarters is in Bratislava, and in each regional capital city one regional chamber of SCCI develops its activities. In addition, it also establishes 17 professional sections and 5 advisory bodies – committees with nationwide scope.

Both natural persons and corporate entities who are active in business or are related to business environment are members of SCCI. As of 1996, membership is voluntary.

SCCI is present in international chambers – Eurochambers based in Brussels and International Chamber of Commerce based in Paris.

The Slovak Chamber of Commerce and Industry has been building a tight relation with foreign chambers of commerce. Cooperation is based on official contracts. This helps SCCI and its members find new business or production partners from abroad or deepen any existing cooperation. Regional SCCI chambers are also included, while most of the activities are carried out with partners that are geographically close.

Considering industry fields, a wide range of businesses is active in SCCI. Either production companies, trade corporations, banks, insurance houses, service providers, agricultural or food industry entities – as well as specialized high schools. When it comes to size, SCCI members range from large companies with Slovak and foreign capital, holdings, incorporated companies to smaller SMEs. SCCI members take 84% share of total Slovak GDP and almost 90% of Slovak export.

SCCI offers a wide range of services, regardless of whether companies are or are not an SCCI member: organizing of business missions, B2B events, participation at international fairs and exhibitions; organizing seminars and training; legal services; advisory and consulting services; certification services; projects; publishing activity.
